ORIGIN

The world-famous "breadbasket"

Radouga Distilleries is located on a farm near the Arctic Circle in Saskatchewan, Canada, known as the "Land of Living Skies." It is surrounded by mineral-rich bedrock. The distillery's raw materials, including home-grown, premium grains including wheat and oats, are recognized worldwide as some of the finest agricultural produce. The distillery crafts spirits of exquisite aromatic complexity, luxurious smoothness, and exceptional flavor purity.

INGREDIENT

premium water sources

Blaine Lake, a small town in Saskatchewan, is celebrated for its clean air and unparalleled natural beauty. This special place is nestled in an Arctic coniferous forest and blessed with the pristine glacial waters of Blaine Lake. Formed over millennia by glacial meltwaters that carried deposits of mineral-rich silt and sand, these pure waters naturally evolve into a treasure trove of minerals. Blaine Lake's unique geological heritage of glacial origins yields a water source of unparalleled purity and mineral composition—a distinction no other distillery can replicate.

DISTILLERY

Radouga Distilleries

Passionate about creating high-quality, innovative libations, Radouga Distilleries has evolved into a prominent name within the spirits and Ready-to-Drink (RTD) beverage industry. Consistently delivering products that embody an unwavering dedication to craftsmanship and uncompromising quality, the distillery has a heritage of excellence while pioneering new frontiers in beverage innovation.

PROCESS

Craftsmanship

As factory owner, Mr. Paul Riben has uncompromisingly protected the purity of Acqua Vitae—the lifeblood of Radouga spirits—for decades. He has honed his unique artisanal methodology: small-batch crafting by hand. This alchemy begins 200 meters underground, where mineral-rich frozen aquifers create water of crystalline perfection, which is then blended with Canada's finest heirloom grains to create the vodka—a savory symphony where glacial geology combines with synthetic mastery to create flavors as unique as the land that inspires them.
